A RAKING CRITICISM.

A Historian Reviews General Sherman's Memoirs, AND HE GIVES A CANDID OPINION.

The following criticism of General Sherman's memoirs, by H. H. Bancroft in his Popular Tribune, "The request of Justice Field, of the United States supreme court, that General Sherman write from St. Louis, the 25th of February, 1885, a letter detailing his California experience of 1856, which was published in the Overland Monthly of February, 1874, and reproduced in substance in his Memoirs. This document abounds in inaccuracies and misstatements. A few of which I will point out: Among other things, he asserted that without a standing army the American people would become a mob, which language many of his best friends would dissent from. Surely if General Sherman had considered for a moment never would have placed a free people in a position of holding over themselves a guard of hired soldiers to keep them from insurrection! Least of all do the American people require so to keep themselves. Was it a mob General Sherman led in Georgia? Do the transactions of the secession committee of 1856, as recorded in these pages, read like the doings of a mob?

He states further that James King, of Virginia, turned against his old associates, when he exposed the rascality of J. C. Woods, and Adams and company, and against Woods especially, who by public clamor became alarmed for his personal safety and escaped the country. Now, no one knew better than Sherman that King was a single-minded man and Woods a trickster. It is a curious thing that the general unwittingly among thieves, would call it turning against his old associates when he exposed them. Besides, who ever saw King turn against his old associates? He was a man of honor, and he was a man of principle. He was a man of honor, and he was a man of principle. He was a man of honor, and he was a man of principle.

FOR THE CAMPAIGN.

The Meeting at Prohibition Headquarters Last Night.

THE YOUNG MEN'S PROHIBITION CLUB.

A Temporary Organization Effected—Several Addresses Upon the Question of the Day—Future Meetings.

The weather was not agreeable last night, but the call for a meeting to reorganize the Young Men's Prohibition club was responded to by an audience that well-filled the headquarters on Hunter street, and held a very interesting meeting, but permanent organization was not effected, this being postponed until Thursday evening.

At the entrance doors every one who attended was presented with a blue badge, the words "For Prohibition" being printed thereon in bold type, and the badges were pinned to the coat, making it a conspicuous badge of the prohibitionist. In addition to this, the name and residence of all who entered the hall were recorded.

Several gentlemen were applauded as they accepted the badges upon entering the hall. Mr. R. T. Dow coming in for a share of this demonstration of approval, when he entered and took his seat remarking that he was "here to stay." Mr. Dow has heretofore been a prominent anti-prohibitionist, and until recently president of the Independent club.

The meeting was called to order, with a few remarks of a business nature from Mr. Henry Hillier, by reason of his position in the last campaign, who stated that he was gratified by the attendance at the meeting and congratulated his hearers upon the success which had attended the prohibition movement in Atlanta during the past two years.

After this committee had retired to prepare their report, it was suggested by the chairman that the present meeting be an excellent opportunity for an impromptu experience meeting, and his idea met with prompt and generous applause from the audience, and loud calls were made for the chairman to read the report.

Mr. Dow was the recipient of many congratulations from admiring friends, as well as complimentary references from the speakers who followed him.

Major Kiser was next called for and responded by saying that he was a worker and not a speaker; that he was a prohibitionist and in favor of its methods, for the benefit of the young men of Atlanta and the whole country.

As Major Kiser took his seat Recorder Anderson's name was called up, and the recorder briefly stated that he was a prohibitionist, but occupying the position that he now did, it was hardly the proper thing for him to take an active part as a public speaker.

Representative Bray was called for, but as he was not present at the time, it was announced that he would speak at the court-house meeting on Thursday evening next, when everyone would have an opportunity of hearing him.

Dr. Hawthorne responded to the enthusiastic calls and spoke briefly of the harmony and Christian spirit of the meeting, touching also upon the fact that the logic of events was fast making friends and votes for the prohibition movement. He spoke of the intention to make this a campaign where good will and the absence of mud-throwing would be conspicuous.

Dr. Hawthorne asserted his confidence in the victory at the November election, stating that he was reliably informed that the colored vote would be 1,000 greater for prohibition than in 1885. He said that he wanted every member of the club and every one of his hearers to win at least five votes from the opposition.

At the conclusion of Dr. Hawthorne's remarks, the committee appointed to prepare a plan of organization announced their readiness to report, leading in the following set of resolutions, which were received and adopted: Resolved, first, that the officers of the Young Men's Prohibition club of Fulton county shall consist of a president, four vice-presidents, secretary and treasurer, and an executive committee, consisting of two for the county at large, one for each of the four districts, and one for the city in the city, and that the president of the club be ex-officio chairman of executive committee.

hibition, but impressed upon every one the duty of active, earnest and conscientious work.

He was followed by Mr. Hooper Alexander in one of the best addresses of the evening. The speaker indulged in a retrospection of the past two years, and while admitting that the present status of the cause in Atlanta was not a perfect success, it had become more so than anticipated, and had brought none of the predicted evils upon the city. He cited figures to show that the population and wealth had increased remarkably since 1885, and stated that if this had not been done in spite of prohibition it had been done in spite of it.

He predicted a majority of 1,500 for prohibition at the November election. Captain E. S. Gay made an address, in response to repeated calls, referring to his having been a member of the Young Men's Prohibition club, and pledging his earnest support to the cause of prohibition in the present campaign. His remarks were well received.

Dr. J. C. followed in a brief but earnest speech, calling attention to the evils of the whisky traffic, especially in the larger cities of the country, where it virtually dominated business and politics, and contended that such a result was to be deplored and avoided at all hazards.

There were no further formal addresses, and after an appeal for prompt and general registration, and the announcement that a public meeting would be held on Thursday evening at 6:30, the club adjourned until that date.

During the meeting permanent organization on Thursday evening the club will make no effort to participate in the public meeting announced for that night.

THE DAY WITH THE POLICE FICE.

Two Negroes Have a Bloody Fight—The Advance Agent Out on Bond—Criminal News.

A short, slim slab off a Baker streetward fence, covered with blood and hair, rested at a corner at the city prison last night, while the man from whose head the blood and hair came lay in pain upon a bed near the corner of Calhoun and Baker streets.

The man who used the slab occupied cell in the city prison.

About midnight persons residing near the corner of Calhoun and Baker streets were awakened by yells and cries for help, those who cared to leave their warm beds to investigate the matter discovered a small crowd of negroes in the street near the corner.

One of the negroes was lying on the ground with the head wound, and a board belonging to a fence. The man on the ground was lying on his back, with his head on the ground, and his arms outstretched.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY.

The Rev. Sam Jones is having his gospel tent enlarged so that it will hold nearly two thousand people more.

There will be a delightful musical entertainment Friday night at the residence of Dr. Theodore Schumann, on Cooper street.

Mr. Wilson and Mr. Dykeman, who were injured in the recent railway accident on the Richmond and Danville railroad, have returned to the city. They are confined to their beds and are suffering from their injuries.

Mr. Walker, Woolfolk's lawyer, says that his client's trial will probably occur next month, although as yet the grand jury has not considered his case. Work is now taking things easy in Fulton county jail.

The German on Friday evening, to be given by the Northside club, will be held in the Kimball house ballroom. A large number of couples will attend, and in elegance and enjoyment the occasion will surpass any similar event given in Atlanta in some time.

Quite a number of Atlanta society people were down to Macon yesterday to attend the Fulton club German to be given to Miss Winnie Davis. Among the young men who will attend from the city are Messrs. Charles Crankshaw, Mr. Tom Paine, Mr. Grant and others.

Quite a number of young ladies and gentlemen from neighboring cities are in Atlanta for the purpose of attending the Hagan-Johnson wedding tonight at St. Phillips'. There will be twenty-two couples in all, and the occasion will be one of great social interest.

A PARALYTIC STROKE.

Colonel Tom Howard, of Kirkwood, Seriously Ill.

BUT LITTLE CHANCE FOR RECOVERY.
Anxious Solicitude of the Many Friends of the Venerable Gentleman for News About His Condition.

One of the best known men in Georgia is Colonel Tom Howard, of Kirkwood. His connection with men and measures for a long number of years has made him a prominent character, and a thousand friends will read with inexpressible sorrow the news of the paralytic stroke received by him on Monday evening last.

Not a long time since Colonel Howard experienced a slight stroke of paralysis, but the attack was not of long duration, and in a few weeks he was to all appearance as well as ever. But paralytic strokes are always said to be followed by others, and sure enough the second one received by Colonel Howard is far more severe than the first, and on account of his extreme age may result fatally. His entire left side is completely paralyzed, and he is of course unable to move. Talking is also a matter of much difficulty, and it requires much effort on the part of the sick man to make himself understood. On Monday evening Colonel Howard was sitting in his home in the company of his wife, and about six o'clock said to her that he thought he felt a peculiar sort of numbness in his left hand. At the very moment he was speaking the paralysis was stealing over him, and a few minutes after speaking he was powerless and speechless from the shock. Medical aid was soon summoned and everything possible was done for the sufferer. He is in the hands of Dr. Ridley and is the recipient of every attention from a host of friends. Owing to his advanced years, his last birthday being his 72nd, and to very problematical whether he will fully recover. At the last account he was still in a very precarious condition, no perceptible change for the better or for the worse having set in.

Colonel Howard comes from a well known family. His father, John Howard, was a distinguished Methodist divine of remarkable ability and power, and was well known over Georgia. Colonel Howard was educated at Randolph-Macon college in Roanoke county, Virginia, and Judge E. B. Tripp, of this city, was a classmate with him. Colonel Howard was educated for the bar, and practiced with considerable success his profession in Greensboro, and for some time afterwards in Crawford county. Leaving the law, he gave for an occasional client, he turned his attention and devoted his energies to agricultural pursuits, and was a prominent and successful planter. He was closely identified with the State Agricultural society, and has often been honored with high office by the society. His was a warm champion of the state fair idea, and for several years was personally in charge of the agricultural society exhibitions.

As a democrat, Colonel Howard has always been among the foremost men in the party in Georgia. Eloquent, impassioned and anecdotal, he was an admirable stump speaker, and in many a campaign has figured prominently, with advantage to the democratic cause, his telling effect upon its opponent. In the campaign of 1853, he stump the second congressional district for H. V. Johnson as governor and A. H. Colquhoun for congressman. The campaign was exciting and the race for the gubernatorial chair close, and Howard's work was undeniably effective. Prior to the war, he removed to Atlanta and engaged in business here, where he accumulated a considerable fortune. Soon after removing here he was made postmaster, as a recognition of his service to the party of which President Buchanan was then the leader and exponent. In the days of reconstruction, just after the war, Colonel Howard took a prominent part, and was among the first to raise the later emergency of Georgia to work and to action. Even before the clarion voice of Ben Hill had sounded the march, he had been in the front, and it was Colonel Howard's more than one address had roused the people, and in a great measure, had prepared the public mind for the reception of that advice and those measures that resulted in the re-control of Georgia by Georgians.

He was in the executive office under Governor James M. Smith, and served in the same capacity, that of executive secretary, to Governor Colquhoun during his occupancy of the gubernatorial chair. Other offices of trust and honor he has filled, always to the satisfaction of friends and foes. Of late years he has lived quietly at his pretty home in Kirkwood, preparing for the summer that seems so near.

Core Van Tassel Counting.
On Friday evening, the 25th, will appear at her opera house, the little southerner Core Van Tassel, supported by her excellent dramatic company. In the new spectacular "Hidden Hand," a dramatization of Mrs. E. D. N. Southworth's famous New York ledger story, she will appear. The play will be superbly mounted, with elegant special scenery and new and novel mechanical effects, and every detail will be carefully looked after. This company carry their own band and orchestra.

The Best Ideal of a Family Medicine.
A remedy which promptly and completely relieves ailments of such common occurrence as indigestion, constipation, biliousness and disorders of a malarial type, is assuredly the best ideal of a family medicine. Such is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is not only capable of eradicating these complaints, but also counteracting a tendency to kidney troubles, rheumatism and premature decadence of stamina. Taking it "all round," as the phrase is, there is probably not in existence so useful, effective and agreeable a household panacea as the Bitters. Nor is it less highly esteemed by the medical profession than by the families of the nation. Numerous testimonials from professional sources of irrefragable authenticity evince its merit. The demand for it abroad, no less than in the land of its discovery, is certainly increasing, time and experience of its beneficial effects confirming the high opinion originally formed of it.

Architect, W. H. Parkins.
By card, in another column, Mr. W. H. Parkins resumes his architectural work. He is to be public ready to prepare plans and specifications for any kind of building.

Mr. Parkins has long been known as one of our most skillful and practical architects, and has had charge of and designed many of our most prominent public buildings, as well as numbers of the most costly private residences in the city and elsewhere. His long and varied experience has given him a wide reputation, and he cannot fail to reap a large share of the patronage from those who contemplate the erection of both public and private buildings.

Thos. D. Crump's View on Fairness.
A Journal reporter called on Mr. Thomas D. Crump and said, "I understand that you drew a prize in the Louisiana State Lottery drawing of the 9th ult." "I did," "What was your ticket?" "29146." "Did it represent the whole, or a part of the prize?" "A part—one-third of the consolation prize, amounting to $5,000." "Did you receive the full amount the ticket represented?" "I received the full amount eight days after the ticket had drawn." "What did you do with the money?" "Our Jonesboro (Mo.) Bank collected it through the Laclede Bank of St. Louis, and paid it to me." "I consider that the business of the Louisiana State Lottery is conducted fairly, without partiality or favor."—Jonesboro (Mo.) Journal, September 8.

"Eureka."
The premium story bearing this name, referred to by the press, in connection with the Baxter Store and Manufacturing company's award, for sale by W. J. Wood, the stovier, No. 87 Walnut street, this city, is a story of a young man, who has passed to the front, and today stands at the head of the list of all good cooking stoves in the country. Thousands of these stoves are in use in Atlanta and surrounding country, and each year the number is increasing. The story is a true one, and is a recommendation of where a first-class stove is desired.
